E-Democracy.org provides a number consulting services for a fee to non-profits, foundations, media organizations, governments, civil society groups, companies, universities and others.

Our unique "democracy online" experience and technology-base may be useful to your organization. Earned revenue supports our exciting non-profit, non-partisan democracy building work and mission. We do not work on advocacy/lobbying related projects.

Through us you can cost-effectively tap a talented array of consultants and experts from around the world.

Within our main program area, note the Issues Forum services for communities we provide when you are part of our official network.

Services we offer to potential clients include:

- Hosting private online groups for those in the "democracy building" sector
- Inclusive social media training on reaching diverse and lower income communities
- Supporting or advising special online communities of practice
- Social media, e-participation, etc. training and education
- Grassroots online outreach via e-mail lists, forums, Facebook, YouTube, etc.
- Advising governments, companies and others on using the Internet in governance (e-participation)
- Hosting online conferences and consultations
- Public speaking on e-democracy related topics (in person or online)
- E-democracy related research and analysis services
